DRAGONS SCORE 21-0 VICTORY OVER JAMESTOWN

NUMBER ONE, Dragon halfback Bob Haslet cracks right tackle after less than five minutes of play to give Warren touchdown number one in Saturday's fine 21-0 victory over arch rival Jamestown.

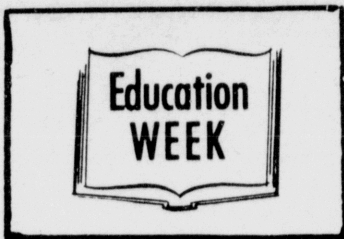

HIT 'EM HARD, Lineback Don McKelvy shows how he knocked 'em down. The victim of his fine defensive play is Jamestown's Rick Hammond.

PULLING in the Mascaro aerial is Bob Haslet, who moved the ball to the Jamestown five yard stripe to setup Warren's second score.

HERE IS WHY the Dragons beat Jamestown. The line has the jump on the opposition and Mascaro is about to hand it off to one of two backs moving in fast for the hole that will be there. In this case Wick, 39, tucked it away and picked up seven or eight yards.

Fluoridation Ordinance Proposed For Warren

An ordinance which would provide fluoridation for Warren through its water supply was introduced by Councilman Warren E. Miller, chairman of the public service committee, at Monday's meeting. Action on the ordinance was delayed until the December meeting to allow council time to study it.

The chemical will be added to the water at the pumping station in a proportion of one part sodium fluoride to a million parts of water. The equipment will be installed by the Warren Water Company at no cost to the borough and there will be no charge added to the bills for the monthly service.

Equipment for treating the water must be approved by state health officials and the operation will be regularly inspected. The amount will be very closely controlled and tests of the water will be made hourly.

The purpose of fluoridation is to protect young teeth from decay during the formative years. If a major share of the caries are prevented during this period, healthy teeth can be assured through normal care during the adult years. Thus the service which at first benefits only the young people and the pocketbooks of the parents who pay for dental care, later pays off for all as we become an adult population which has enjoyed such protection during our youth.

Fluoridation is approved by all of the major medical, dental, nursing, research, and drug associations and commissions. All government health departments, state and national, approve it.

It also has been found to be legal through many efforts to prevent it by court action. Such ordinances have been upheld by the courts in every case.

It was explained by the doctors present, Bryan and Borger, that sodium fluoride is a poison. So are 75 per cent of the medicines which must be prescribed, such as penicillin and many others. It is for this reason that controlled fluoridation is urged. If done by the parent through prescription he may not mix it properly and he also may do it irregularly.

Fluoridation has been proved in areas where it is a natural content of the water, even in a proportion as high as eight parts to a million. In such areas the ill effects are minor and tooth decay is much less than normal. A slight discoloration of the teeth sometimes results where the percentage is high.

Dr. Borger stated that he has six children and 6,000 children patients and he would not hesitate to recommend fluoridation for all of them. He said he had given it to his children but found that it was so much of a bother he would forget to keep a supply in the refrigerator. He gave up because of the inadequate result.

SOME PROTESTED

The usual protests were heard during the discussion, spurred on by the pamphleteers and professional opponents who have been making fluoridation a prime medium for inciting trouble for many years. Thousands of doctors are claimed to be opposed to it and some communities who have adopted the service have discontinued it.

In the same breath they intimated that it was un-American and communist, and that it also was a dire plot to make millions for the capitalist producers of sodium fluoride.

It was attacked as being mass-medication and some protested against being denied the right of choice.

It was falsely described as helping only the children and an elderly gentleman claimed he still had his teeth and saw no need for protection.

The contradictory part of this entire approach is that all of those who are opposed to fluoridation will visit their doctor when ill and will take the medicine he prescribes. But they will not believe him when he says daily drinking of water that has been minutely treated to prevent dental decay is not harmful. Not one local doctor or dentist was quoted as being opposed, and the only person present among the opponents who was related to the medical profession was a chiropractor from Falconer, N.Y.

AND OTHER BUSINESS

Council followed the fluoridation discussion by buying a new police car from Dan's Chevrolet for a net cost of $1390. The Smith Buick net bid was $2112.

It voted to approve a 230-foot sewer on Hill st., starting at Monroe, and approved the use of Memorial field by the Junior Chamber of Commerce for the purpose of presenting a semi-pro football game between Jamestown and Niagara. Councilman Langdon was the only opposing vote to the football game.

Mrs. Merle Kremer was named to serve on the recreation board for a five-year term, succeeding Mrs. Wallace Cowden.

Council discussed the danger of stringing Christmas lights in a way which conflicts with the traffic lights and a change probably will be made at the intersections this year.

Action on a fire prevention code and on parking problems resulting from the increased mileage of paved streets was promised.

AIRMAN DANIEL E. WEBSTER, has completed his initial course of Air Force basic military training at Lackland Air Force Base and will now attend the technical training school for radio and radar at Keesler AFB in Mississippi.

The Warren high school graduate is the son of George D. Webster, 103 Central ave., Warren.

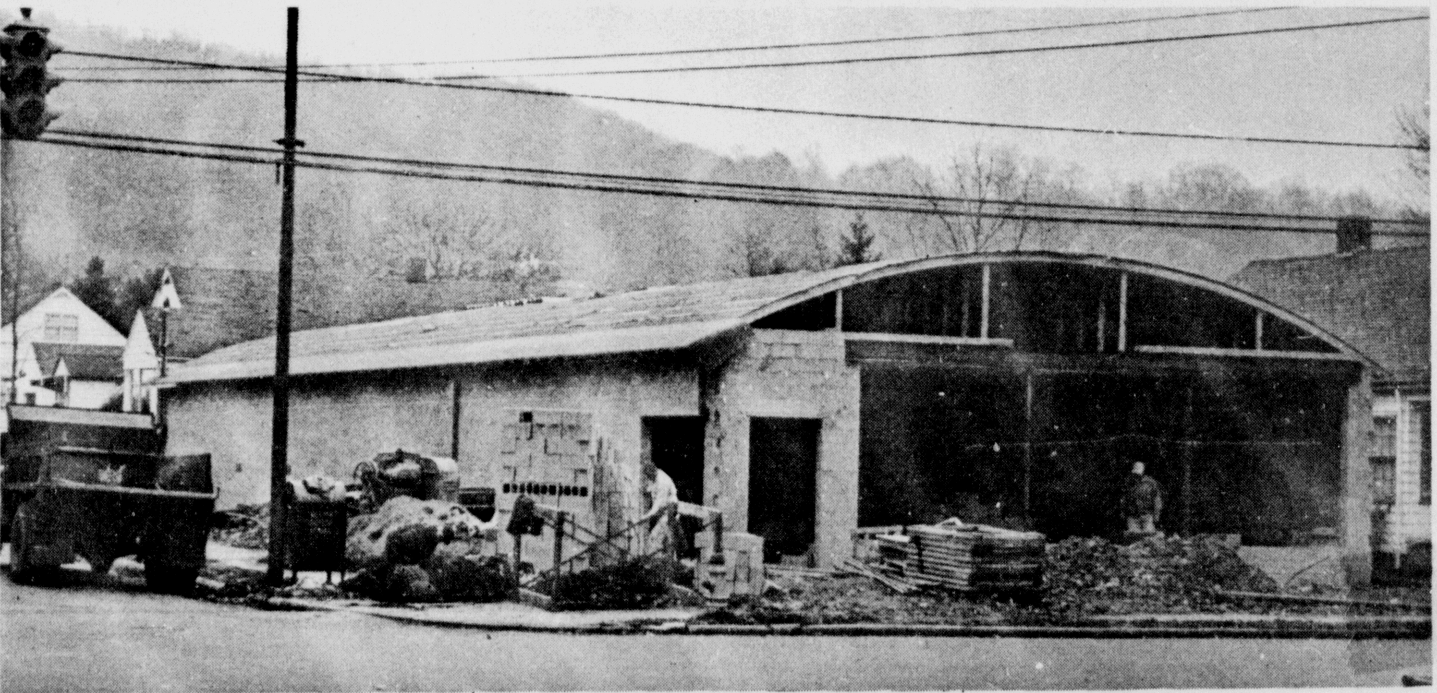

WELCOME, BUT BE CAUTIOUS. This is one of four signs the community service committee of the Warren Veterans of Foreign Wars has presented to Warren borough.

The "Welcome To Warren, Protect Our Children" plaques will be posted at the east and west ends of town on Route 6, on upper Market st. and at the end of Conewango ave.

COMING ALONG is the construction on this new roller skating rink being built by Anthony Pellegrino, of Kane, at the corner of Pennsylvania ave. and Struthers st. on Warren's West Side.

ALL SUPERS are not moving out of Warren. Here is the Ralph Theodore store which is going up at McPherson and Conewango.

IT WASN'T EASY but a tough portion of West Fifth ave. finally has been included in the Warren paving program. Here we see the finishing touches, not only to the double-level Fifth ave. job, but also to the entire summer project, Warren rapidly is hard-surfacing its streets and now is faced with a new one.

Where do you park the cars if the owners do not own garages and if the street cleaner is to do an efficient job? The answer may lie in placing the responsibility for off-street parking on the car owner, who either must make himself a driveway or find car housing elsewhere if he lacks the room. Or the cleaning may be staggered in a way which will leave certain streets in every neighborhood open for parking on designated nights. These parking streets then can be cleaned in other hours.

THE TROUBLE WITH OUR SCHOOLS

The trouble with our schools, if there be trouble, may not be where the spotlight shines this Education Week. Because of the questions being asked and the criticisms that constantly are leveled, most teachers and a major share of our school administrators are very much on the defensive.

Because of this we see a flow of news releases that tell us how well our schools are doing, how they are operating, and comparing the results with the national "norm". The teachers sit in a goldfish bowl, and perhaps as public employees this is rightly so . . . but we suspect that at least half our problem is not theirs to solve.

In all fairness we suggest that the teachers be allowed to reverse this process. We would like to see them have the reciprocal advantage of visiting the home. This possibly is impractical, but if there are enough good speakers among them, fully informed concerning the overall complexities of our educational system, they might attend the PTA meetings and take their side to the parents.

The teacher who has over one hundred boys and girls with whom to be concerned, also has the many variables affecting them, a large portion of which are found in the home and the family. If you expect the teacher to correct all the imperfections you have provided in the way of a child who is ill-mannered, poorly disciplined, and lacking in basic knowledge you are apt to be disappointed in the report card results.

Parents cause more trouble in our schools than any other group of individuals, including the students. If they constantly attack the school system, though poorly informed on the subject, they foster disrespect with their vocal criticism and counteract any efforts put forward by school officials and teachers.

IS YOUR CHILD READY?

Is your child properly prepared for school? Is he or she ready to attend class?

One of the most important backgrounds and possibly the most vital base for a rounded education is good reading. The child who is lacking in that experience is greatly handicapped. Parents who expect the teacher to find time for class reading are making a major mistake.

But if you have not introduced good reading into your home, how do you expect your children to adopt it as a part of their life. If you limit your entertainment to watching television, the cocktail circuit, and other evening hour pleasures, what do you expect your son and daughter to be doing during those hours?

If your child is not enjoying good marks do you insist on his bringing his books home? Do you give him personal attention and insist on regular study until the marks show results? Or do you let him convince you that he has plenty of study time in school and that the teacher just isn't getting it across.

This always falls a little flat when you learn that there are other students who are receiving scholastic honors, local and nationwide. Who taught them?

Teachers with full class rooms and heavily loaded study halls are going to have their teaching efforts greatly limited if a big share of their time is to be devoted to polishing off the rough spots. Manners and discipline should start at home. A half dozen boorish children (or even one) in a room can disrupt the entire teaching effort.

Who turned them out into the world in this crude fashion?

Little is accomplished by school discipline if it is not backed up by dad and mother. A refuge from the hard facts of life is not conducive to correction.

It often is well said that the family which prays together stays together. That is not an exaggeration if all involved become a part of a sincere effort.

But there are parents who apparently leave it for the class in religious education to provide the spiritual training. Or they hope a Sunday school teacher will "reach" their sons and daughters through the proper use of one hour a week for forty-eight, or less, weeks.

Again the responsibility is being misplaced, and again the family circle is not fulfilling its responsibility. You are gambling if you believe your child will be one of those lucky ones who in the course of their school years find teachers who have sufficient influence on their thinking to make a real person of them.

YOUR DECISION, TOO

We also hear the schools criticized for not helping young people to decide what their vocation is to be, and whether or not they should attend college. We believe the schools can do a much better job of this, and that some vocational advisers fall far short of an all-out effort to see that each student is given the best direction. It is too easy to let the students decide and to make no effort to reach him.

But the parents can help, and they are not carrying their half of the burden if their children continue to wander listlessly through school and deep into their senior year without reaching some kind of decision. All boys and girls should be taking the various examinations which are made available to determine their ability, and the parents should insist that they do so.

And every student should choose his career first and his school second. Too many are doing it in reverse, which leaves them floundering well into their second senior semester, often too late to enter the best school for the work they intend to do. If indecision carries deep into the senior year, why not try a year in a good liberal arts college. It may be the year of decision and a transfer can be made as a sophomore.

Such decisions often must be encouraged by others than the adviser who has hundreds to consider. Cooperation by the parent may save the young person from a period of procrastination which can adversely affect his entire life.

BUT WILL YOU PAY FOR IT?

As a parent you possibly are earning well above $5,000 a year, and you may never have spent a dime on college tuition. How then can you expect to employ college-trained help of the best quality to do for your child that which you cannot do yourself if you are not willing to pay salaries that compare with those of machinists and tradesmen?

Teachers' pay should not be mediocre. It either should be so low that only the dedicated will teach, or sufficiently high to attract the best to its field and to encourage them to work at it full time. This again is up to the parent who wants the best for his children.

TWO-WAY BOWL

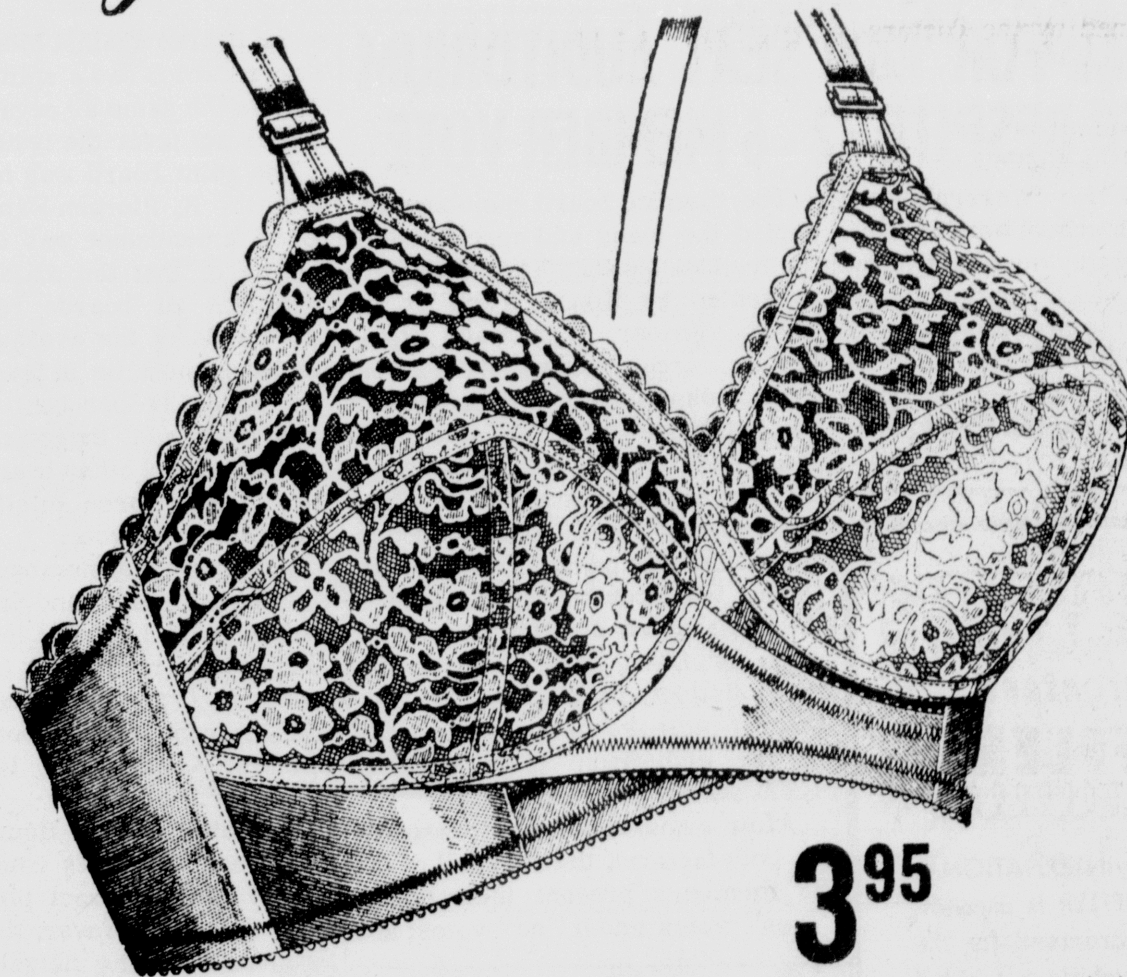

This is Education Week, and reams are being printed and spoken about the schools, parents are visiting classrooms, the attention of all is focused on our teachers. We suggest that those who stare through fish-bowls should be careful how they throw their spears. A collapsed educational system can saturate all of us. A firm foundation is more in order, and for the most part that must be provided by the home and fully alert parents.

There is one very important fact to remember when directing criticism at the educators. We have a major share of "good" students who go on to college and make an excellent showing. The system could not have been entirely bad for them to succeed. What makes a "good" student? The school? The parent? Or is it a cooperative effort on the part of both?

Warren Area Joint School Board Accepts New School Plans

Main Facilities New Building Will House

The drawing at left was traced from the plans as drawn by the architectural firm of Myers, Krider, Werle and Ellenberger of Erie for Warren's new joint area high school.

What facilities will be housed in the lettered sections, subject to slight change, are:

Section A--The gymnasium and cafeteria. The upper portion of this section will be the cafeteria and teachers' dining room with a capacity of about 440 to 460 people. In addition, the storage rooms, freezer rooms, kitchen, etc.

The lower and larger part of the building will be the gymnasium. At the left side of the main floor are the boys' locker and shower rooms, office, team room and storage room. At the right side will be found the girls' locker room, shower room, office and a storage room. The bleachers on this side can be folded up in a manner to make room for an auxiliary gymnasium. A sliding door will divide the gym into two parts.

This part of the building will have the only roof with sky lights.

In the upper portion of the gym plans call for a visiting team room, equipment storage space.

Section B--Basement and Foundation Plan. This section of the building will include a boiler room, incinerator room, refuse room, the power center, four storage spaces, and room for a rifle range. This is all included along the base of the "U" or just beyond the bands.

Section B--First Floor. Across the base of the "U" will be the administrative offices, guidance rooms, conference rooms, faculty rooms, etc. Eight classrooms are housed in one wing, most of them designed for science instruction. In the other wing are five commercial classrooms, two all purpose classrooms, and a section for a hospitality unit, kitchen, etc.

Section B--Second Floor--A large library, three classrooms, conference and work room will be situated at the bottom of the "U". Nine classrooms and two storage rooms are to be situated in one wing and 10 rooms and a storage room in the other. On both floors, of course, are rest rooms, lockers, and such.

Section C--In this portion of the new school plans call for three machine shops and a maintenance and equipment sector which could be turned into another machine shop. Also storage space and an arts and crafts room.

Section D--Auditorium. A 1018-seat auditorium is planned for the new school. There will be back stage dressing rooms, a large lobby, off of which will be public rest rooms.

Section E--This portion of the new high school adjacent to the auditorium will include large band, choral class and speech-drama rooms, storage rooms and practice rooms.

Section F--Exhibition Gallery. The architects have extended the width of this passageway to allow adequate space for an exhibition gallery.

MISCELLANEOUS. Leading in from the right side will be a two-lane road off Fifth ave. A single-lane road leads off at the left to the intersection of Hill st. and Glade ave. Other sections around the actual building represent macadam-paved areas for drives, parking areas, and unloading and loading areas. Art work was by Bill Bower, of the Observer art department.

PROPOSAL FOR 1200 SEAT AUDITORIUM DEFEATED DESPITE 32 - 6 MEMBER VOTE

Final plans for Warren's new $2,600,000 high school were approved Monday night by members of the nine boards which comprise the Warren Area Joint School Board, but efforts to increase the auditorium capacity to 1200 were squelched despite an overwhelming and popular "yes" vote.

The district board members accepted the plans and specifications for the new building after they were presented by Edwin Werle of the Myers, Krider, Werle and Ellenberger architectural firm from Erie. Russell Hanson, chairman of the buildings and grounds committee, submitted the motion to accept the plans and Norman Grosch, vice president of the board, seconded it. The issue was passed unanimously.

The only controversial issue of the joint board meeting came forth when Dr. David Rice, of Conewango twp. district, proposed an amendment to increase the seating capacity of the auditorium from 1,000 to 1,200 seats.

After arguments were presented by both factions, the roll call of the 38 members present indicated 32 "yes" votes and 6 "no" votes; and seven boards against Mead twp. and Warren which had a split vote of 3-3 (this is the same as negative in that it does not favor the issue).

The joint board was informed by solicitor R. Pierson Eaton the proposed amendment was defeated on the basis that the majority of the members of boards representing two-thirds of the average daily attendance must be in favor. Warren has about 59 per cent of average attendance and, therefore, with the support of any other board, with the exception of three small districts, can control the vote.

Mead township members, Messrs. Chinberg, Grosch, and Saylor, voted with Messrs. Keller, Kieshauer and Jewell of Warren board to defeat the issue. In favor for the larger auditorium from Warren borough were Messrs. Calderwood, Hanson and O'Connor.

No definite cost figure for the additional 200 seats could be presented because exact plans had not been drawn. However, the cost was estimated in the neighborhood of $15,000.

Arguments brought out by those favoring the larger auditorium were that the auditorium and the gymnasium were the two sections of the school that would be the most difficult to expand at a later date; that the student enrollment estimate for 1964-65 in the high school was 1293 pupils, meaning two assemblies would have to be conducted to accommodate the student body; and that attendance at public events held at Beatty auditorium have indicated the need for a larger auditorium for the community. Speaking strong for the issue were Dr. Rice, Dr. O'Connor and Mr. Calderwood.

Myron Jewell led the opposition and based his argument on finances and stated he believed if the tax payers public knew the cost figures they would request a "No" vote.

The plans for the new school are to be presented for approval in Harrisburg next week. Bids will be advertised on November 26 and opened on January 7.

Consideration and possible approval of the lowest satisfactory bids will be given by the Warren Area Joint Board on January 12.

Jt. Committee Discusses Mural For Auditorium

Plans for a mural to decorate a portion over the main entrance-way of the new high school auditorium were heard by members of the joint committee of the Warren Area School Board when they met Monday evening after the mass board session.

The mural, presented by the architect, would consist of figures on enamel panelling, which is a part of the outside concrete of the building. An alternate will be planned in the bidding so that the exact cost will be available for the committee's consideration.

The school body passed a motion requesting the Warren High School Authority to accept the project of building the high school.

The architect was authorized to employ Henry Fuellhart to locate flags on the new school site as an aid to the contractors in bidding, and the contract of the Pennsylvania Gas Company giving necessary right-of-way to change their high-pressure gas line was approved.

Bills totaling $15,004, were presented by the finance committee and then approved. These included $5,861 for fire insurance and $1,923 for group life insurance. Other payments approved amounted to $371, substitutes employed; $50, recreation services; $128, special services; $1,423, janitors' overtime; $8,466, cafeteria bills; $686, orders written during the month.

Merle Johnson and Michael Stanko were employed as janitors in the high school.

It was reported that Anita A. Petersen, 321 Jackson ave., proceeding north on Prospect, failed to stop for the stop sign and crashed into the side of a vehicle operated by Martha Hornstrom, 801 Lincoln st., which was proceeding east on Madison. The Peterson auto then veered into a parked car owned by Marion B. Chaddock, 224 Central ave.

MORE PARKING for Warren may result if the Warren Parking Authority is supported by local officials. It wants $10,000 from council and $7,500 from the Warren Chamber of Commerce with which it will initiate action that will result in the provision of 212 parking spaces at the foot of Liberty st.

To make it easier for those using the parking area a foot bridge would be built from the point of the former island to the soldiers and sailors park near the Hickory st. bridge. This would make entrance possible from both ends of the lot for those walking to and from their cars.

The total cost would be about $93,980, of which $72,000 would go for land, $12,000 for meters, and the rest for the bridge, paving, and miscellaneous items.

The cost would be teamed up with the expenditure being made on the Nulph property where another 34 parking places will be created. The total cost of the two projects would be about $113,800, of which $96,300 would be financed.

Annual payments would run about $9,960. The estimated annual income would be $10,200.

This means that the cost per space would be about $472.52, far less than that paid by many communities, some of which have checked out $2,000 a place. If Warren's business area is to compete with the shopping plazas it must take such progressive steps to stay alive.

NO DEMOCRACY is practiced by the Warren area school boards who have a voting procedure that they should keep out of sight while instructing the youth of the area in Americanism and the rights of man. At Monday's meeting of the area board, 32 members voted for a 1200-seat auditorium and six opposed it. Thirty-two to six. But the six won!

In order for a motion to win it must be backed by a majority of the boards who represent two-thirds of the school population. Warren had only six of its seven members present and they split 3-3. Without Warren represented on the positive side no motion can win.

There has been some conversation kicked around in this nation concerning taxation without representation. Perhaps the eight boards outside of Warren should examine the jointure's by-laws a bit closer. Of course they now are licked. Any move to change the rules can be defeated by Warren.

SOME DAY a group of area residents will organize themselves for the purpose of raising money with which to build an adequate public auditorium. The idea has been considered for many years and when many of our other needs are met this one will pop up again.

We can do it right now for far less than the per seat cost simply by adding the needed number. But why are we wasting space with reason? Reason has apparently been lost in the shadow of prejudice.

CORRECTION. David Lawrence did not win in Warren county. The way our article read last week you would so conclude. The omission of Mr. McGonigle's name in connection with his total changed the sense of the story. As any Warren countian would know.

THE DIFFERENCE between our election and that of some foreign democracies is that we have fixed years for our officials and do not boot them out when the voters lose faith. But we do have a means of expressing dissatisfaction.

This is found in what we term the off-year election. In view of the results, some officials who were not personally involved in the campaign sound a bit out of step when they say, No matter what the public wishes are as expressed in the election we will fight to stop their chosen officials from doing what the voters apparently elected them to do!

NO ADVERSE EFFECT seems to have resulted in the stock value of Sylvania Electric Products, Inc. or that of General Telephone corporation since their proposed merger was announced last week. The plan is to merge Sylvania into General Telephone, issuing a share of General stock for every share of Sylvania.

The new name would be General Telephone and Electronics Corp. Donald C. Power, president of General would be the new chairman of the board and Don G. Mitchell, chairman and president of Sylvania, would be the new corporation's president.

Sylvania would operate as a separate corporate entity. It employs about 25,000 people, and 44 plants. General Telephone employs about 50,000 and has 27 subsidiary companies in 30 states with about 3 1/3 million telephone subscribers.

General's earnings last year were $45,733,000. Sylvania's were $12,655,839. Sylvania's nine-months sales this year have slipped below that of the comparative period a year ago. General's business has gone up over two million.

MARKET MANAGER for entertainment electronic components is the new title of Philip M. Pritchard, recently of Warren where he was general sales manager of the Sylvania parts division. He now is employed by the General Instrument corporation, and the projects he markets represent half the firm's volume.

A DOOR PRIZE has been added to the growing list of incentives to bring you to Warren for shopping. Turner Radio has a coupon in this week's ad which might be worth something to you if you clip and deposit it in the box in that store. The drawing takes place at eleven, Friday night. Just clip it and leave it.

TREASURY AGENT: EVIDENCE WRAPPED IN HOTEL TOWELS PUTS FEDERAL AGENTS HOT ON TRAIL OF BOGUS-MONEY RING NEAR BUFFALO

This is the tenth in a series of articles taken from "Treasury Agent," just published by Simon and Schuster and written by well-known newspaperman Andrew Tully.

BY ANDREW TULLY

IN ANY CONSPIRACY to counterfeit United States currency, the hoodlums have a couple of big strikes on them. One is the painstaking detective work of the United States Secret Service. The other is the scientific laboratory.

Seldom have these two vital assets of the nation's citizenry been used to better advantage than in an $800,000 counterfeiting case which centered around Buffalo, N. Y., in 1950. "The Case of the Hotel Towels" was a classic example of the techniques of modern crime detection with man and the scientific gadget sharing the credit for the smashing of the ring.

Between January 13 and September 25, 1950, seventeen counterfeiters were nabbed and $700,000 worth of counterfeit notes were seized.

Secret Service first learned of the existence of this ring on January 13, 1950, when the first bogus $20 Federal Reserve note turned up in New York City. A week later, a phony $10 bill was passed, also in New York.

The scene suddenly shifted to Los Angeles, where an underworld informant advised the SS office that one James J. Stancin and one Felix S. Pandolfo had made contact with a New York counterfeit supplier. A couple of SS agents were introduced to Stancin and Pandolfo as right guys and arranged to buy $300,000 in counterfeit notes at $20 a hundred -- an inflationary price for so-called curly.

The agents were shown samples of $10 and $20 notes mailed to Los Angeles by a man named Anthony Chiarella of New York. One agent therefore hustled to New York with the informant, met and closed the deal with Chiarella and promptly tossed Chiarella in the can. Also arrested, in Los Angeles, were Stancin and Pandolfo, and subsequently the SS picked up Anthony Pietarniello and Vincent Palmisano. Subsequently, Chiarella and Stancin got 25 years in the pen; Pietarniello 15 years and Palmisano 10 years. Pandolfo drew a suspended sentence.

The SS kept its agents on the prowl and shortly they picked up one Charles Sicurella on a passing rap. During a lie-detection examination, Charley showed positive reaction when the agents mentioned a suspect named Anthony Iraci. He wouldn't elaborate in conversation, however.

Later in February, Sicurella talked a little. He said he'd heard the counterfeiting plant was located in Buffalo and that the curly distributed came from a bookie named Tony Roche. The Feds quickly determined that Tony Roche was an alias used by Anthony Iraci. SS Chief U. E. Baughman assigned nine agents to the Buffalo area for a full-scale look-see.

Since the notes seized had been wrapped in towels marked Hotel Edison, New York City, all room registrations for January 25 and 26 -- the dates of the original New York negotiations -- were put through a thorough check.

Among the dozens of Italian names screened was that of one Sam Salli of 262 Fourteenth Street, Buffalo, who had checked into the Edison on January 26 with two suitcases. Phone records showed that shortly after he checked in, a call was made from his room to a telephone at 122 Mulberry Street, listed to Anthony Dacunto. This number was known to have been called previously by another counterfeit suspect named Pete.

The agents found that Salli also had registered at the Edison on January 19, and on that date he had received a phone call from the Buffalo home of Anthony Iraci.

One of the theories of crime detection is that if you pay proper attention to the little guys they eventually will lead you to the big guys. The SS, therefore, paid some attention to Christopher Mercio when Chris was arrested at his Buffalo home after police seized $21,000 in counterfeit U. S. notes in his cellar.

Returning to Mercio's home for a further search, SS men discovered a loaded revolver, counterfeit sweepstakes tickets, blank Du Pont pay checks, a numbering machine and several cans of offset printing inks. The boys in the laboratory traced the inks to a New York company whose records showed the inks had been shipped to Moore Business Forms, Inc., Niagara Falls. The numbering machine also had been made for the Moore firm, and the Du Pont checks had been printed at Moore's.

At first Mercio wouldn't talk. But one day the agents confronted him with the intelligence that another defendant had seen him with Anthony Iraci in a Cadillac owned by a nightclub manager. It seemed the nightclub impresario had worked at Moore's in 1944 when the firm had a contract to print OPA ration cards.

Mercio offered his information piecemeal. One day he told the agents the curly seized at his home had been received from a mug known as "Bushy," and that he was to pay $12 per hundred for the stuff. Another day he confided that he had heard the notes were printed in a legitimate printing plant in Buffalo or Niagara Falls.

On a later afternoon Mercio said Bushy had told him the photo-engraver involved was highly skilled but he was scared to death some fellow worker would catch him making the plates.

About this time, the name of Moore Business Forms, Inc., came into the picture again. It was discovered that a phone call had been made to the Moore plant about midnight on January 19 from a hash house patronized by Iraci.

The agents were set to work screening the hundreds of employees of the Moore firm.

Meanwhile, Mercio started talking again. He admitted that "Bushy" was Sam Salli. So did one Salvatore Battaglia, who was picked up March 25 for selling $300 in counterfeit notes. Both Mercio and Battaglia, however, declined to sign written statements to that effect.

Mercio did say that Salli and Iraci once had told him that the original contact with the printer involved in the ring had been made by accident in a bar which he could not identify. All he could offer along that line was that he once had driven Salli and Iraci to a Niagara Falls gin mill known as Fritz's Bar.

Loitering in Fritz's Bar, an agent learned that it was a hangout for several employes of Moore's Business Forms, Inc. One of these patrons was James Wagner, a printing foreman. A bartender recalled that on two occasions Wagner had left large wooden boxes with him and that these boxes had been picked up by Salli and Iraci.

They picked up Wagner on April 3 and strapped the lie detector to his arm. He admitted he'd helped Salli and Iraci to set up a plant for printing phony OPA stamps during the war and that he had stolen inks, plates and other supplies from Moore's and sold them to his hoodlum pals.

Wagner added that in the spring of 1949 he had gotten a fellow employee to make a plate of a three-cent postage stamp and had stolen supplies used in printing counterfeit Canadian currency. He also told of hearing Iraci and Salli, in 1949, discuss the probable profits which might be derived from printing counterfeit tickets to the hit play, "South Pacific."

The time had come to move -- but quietly -- against Salli and Iraci. Consequently, a New York City grand jury returned a secret indictment against the pair for the sale of the $211,000 phony notes in the Chiarella case, and the boys were picked up in Buffalo on April 18, 1950, held in $100,000 bail each and removed to New York City to await trial. At that time Salli was out on bail following his appeal from a sentence of 16 months in a narcotics case.

Pending the trial, the investigation continued. The SS wanted that plant, and it wanted that plate-maker. A checkup had absolved the man who had made the three-cent postage-stamp plate; he had ruined the postage plate, and thereafter Iraci and Salli had wanted no more to do with him.

Agents canvassed printing-supply houses, printing plants and ink establishments. Old OPA cases were studied for suspects. Nosy questions were asked in the neighborhoods where suspects lived.

Among the residential areas checked was a large Buffalo city housing project. Mercio had recalled, in one of his cooperative moments, that during the summer of 1949 he had driven Iraci to that neighborhood and waited for him until he returned carrying a bundle of counterfeit sweepstakes tickets. Each of the several thousand tenants in the project was checked as to background, and a list was compiled of all those engaged in the printing or allied trades.

The Feds checked a couple of con men who allegedly had widespread interests in counterfeit sweepstakes tickets. Two suspects had done some business with the Houston Press, Depew, N. Y., and a couple of agents had a chat with Matthew Zdolinski, who did business at the Houston Press in the cellar of his home. Zdolinski, known as a hard-working man and with no criminal record, owned a Davidson offset press.

Next agents had a chat with a Buffalo type who had had a big finger in the phony OPA stamp racket. He named a few printing establishments where the personnel might not be as honest as Uncle Sam would prefer.

Screening one of these firms, the Sale Lithograph Company, agents learned that a watchman had reported hearing noises in the camera department late at night. Employees were interviewed, and one of them said he had received a phone call some months back from one Bernard Neuner, a former cameraman at the plant asking him to make a plate for counterfeit sweepstakes tickets.

Now somebody remembered that the name Bernard Neuner had been on the list of tenants of the Buffalo housing project where Iraci had picked up the counterfeit sweepstakes tickets. The SS found that Neuner had moved from the project, having bought a $12,500 home with a down payment of $3,700.

While the Feds had Neuner under surveillance, Iraci suddenly came through with some unexpected help. After a chat with Assistant United States Attorney Roy M. Cohn, who later won headlines as Senator Joe McCarthy's picturesque inquisitor, Iraci decided to talk. He named Neuner as the plate maker and Zdolinski as the printer of the gang's counterfeit money.

Arrested in Buffalo on May 9, Neuner and Zdolinski made complete confessions in which they involved Alphonse Stablewski and Henry Stevens, operators of the Superior Printing Company in Buffalo, who had made available a power paper cutter used to cut the sheets of phony currency.

Over a period of five months in the summer of 1950, prison terms were doled out on a wholesale scale to the gang members. Salli got 10 years. Iraci, Neuner and Zdolinski got five each. Wagner drew a five-year suspended sentence and Chris Mercio got a suspended sentence of three years. Stablewski and Stevens each were sentenced to two-year suspended terms.

The Iraci-Salli case had been cracked in fast time -- all the principals had been arrested within four months after the Secret Service first learned of the existence of the ring.

MURROW TELLS THEM

E. R. Murrow's now famous talk in which he picked television apart for its failure to give the public the facts can be found in the November 10 issue of The New Republic. Murrow places the blame squarely on the shoulders of tv executives.

FOOTBALL NEWS FUMBLE

Football News coverage by many radio and television sports reporters falls far short of adequacy. In baseball season you appropriately hear a complete narration on the games of the day, eight of them every day if it doesn't rain. Then, if you are lucky, they may give you the top man in a golf tournament, the winner of a fight, and who won the horse race at Niagara.

But with football in season you hear much stale news of area games which occurred last night and have been reported on several previous programs, then a long session on miscellaneous sport. Finally some of the major football games of the day are tagged on as an afterthought.

Of seventeen major games one Saturday, the evening supper-hour program reported the results of seven. And the half-time and first quarter scores reported we already had heard on tv in mid-afternoon.

STRONGER WBEN-FM

WBEN-FM went off the air last Thursday to permit construction of a new and more powerful addition to the station's FM tower. The project is expected to be completed by Nov. 21.

When the new 56-foot broad-band FM antenna is erected atop the present 1001-foot TV-FM tower, the radio station will be broadcasting at an increased power of 110,000 watts as compared to its former strength of 52,300 watts. It will also be operating on a new channel, 102.5 megacycles on the FM dial.

The FCC granted the construction permit last August together with authorization for increased power on the new channel. The cost has been estimated at $35,810 and the objective is to offer wider coverage and better reception of WBEN-FM in outlying areas. The quality of its high-fidelity music programs should be enhanced by transmission improvements, also.

YOUNG PEOPLE'S CONCERTS

Four of the Young People's Concerts of the New York Philharmonic will be presented for the second consecutive season on CBS-TV, starting in December. Originating in Carnegie Hall, they will be given on Saturdays, Dec. 13, Jan. 24, Feb. 28 and March 28. Leonard Bernstein will again be host of the programs and will conduct the orchestra in selections illustrating his discussion of musical topics.

DIAL SPINNERS

OFFICIAL DETECTIVE debuts on WGR Friday night at 10:30-11:00. Everett Sloane stars as the Official Detective investigator in a series of fast-moving stories based on actual stories from Official Detective Magazine.

UB ROUND TABLE at 7 p.m. Saturday on WBEN-TV will discuss "The 1958 Elections: What Do They Mean?"

ETERNAL LIGHT, a cycle of eight weekly telecasts, began Sunday on NBC. Title of next Sunday's program, 1:30-2 p.m., will be "The Red Box", a play by Marc Siegel.

CONQUEST, a once-a-month series of special science programs, will be seen Sunday at 5 p.m. on CBS channels. Part of Sunday's show will be devoted to a report on the frightening seriousness of beach and soil erosion, pointing out such danger spots as Long Island and the Great Lakes region. The other half of the program will show an actual brain operation on a patient suffering from severe epilepsy.

NBC KALEIDOSCOPE at 5-6 p.m. Sunday will explore reservation life of the American Indian, touching upon such phases as employment, health and education. Reservations in Montana, Wisconsin, California and New Mexico will be visited by TV cameras.

ED SULLIVAN's Sunday night show will have among its guests Met star Roberta Peters, Canadian comics Wayne and Shuster and comedienne Dody Goodman.

MEET THE PRESS will interview Major General Donald N. Yates at 6 p.m. Sunday on NBC. General Yates is the Air Force commanding general at Cape Canaveral and the central figure in the recent moon shooting launchings.

DESILU PLAYHOUSE presents "Kayo Kitty" with Lucille Ball, Aldo Ray and William Lundigan at 10-11 p.m. Monday on CBS. UNION PACIFIC debuts on WBEN-TV Wednesday night at 7:30. The series is built around the railroad of that name during a dramatic period in American history.

PLAYHOUSE 90 has an outstanding drama scheduled for Thursday night. It is an adaptation of William Faulkner's "Old Man" and will star Sterling Hayden and Geraldine Page.

HALLMARK HALL OF FAME presents Alfred Drake and Patricia Morison in "Kiss Me Kate" from 9 to 10:30 Thursday night on NBC channels. Music and lyrics are by Cole Porter and the supporting cast includes Julie Wilson, Bill Hayes and Harvey Lembeck.

PROPOSED PLANS FOR IMPROVED LIBRARY SERVICE

The extremely low level of library service in Pennsylvania deserves an especially close look during this portion of our calendar which has been set aside as education week. We can think of nothing which will do so much for education at so low a cost as good books, available to all.

The Warren county commissioners have been very blind to this fact and their unwillingness to respond to the obvious need and the demands for correction has constantly puzzled us. Always they have seemed to be seeking an "out" . . . and some very silly ones have been used.

Recently the library boards of several surrounding communities, including Youngville and Tidioute, have approved the idea of a county library service, which would greatly augment the limited supply of books to be found on small library shelves, and certainly would be of value to the 20,000 Warren county residents who lack any facilities of this kind.

Such a service would include a bookmobile which would be the medium for supplying the outlying area with a constant turn-over of requested volumes. This would be serviced by a librarian who would travel with the bookmobile, and at least two clerks, one of whom also would be a driver. The other would be located at the source of supply.

There is nothing new about the demand. Nearly every PTA unit in the county, the Grange, the volunteer firemen's county organization, and many others have voted in favor of such a service. In fact most of these rural representatives voiced their wishes very strongly away back in the late 1940's.

But the commissioners listened to a few (apparently more influential than the many) rather than the majority of their constituents. Other public officials in positions to have convinced their contemporaries of the need also drew back into the shadows once a little opposition was evident in what must have been considered "important" segments of our political-social population. The country cousin with no free books at his disposal was ignored.

Today we see several rays of hope. As the result of a recent study made by Dr. Lowell A. Martin, dean of the Rutgers University graduate school of library service, with the assistance of an advisory committee, recommendations have been made for state-wide improvements, the result of which will be more help for the areas which are so badly serviced that Pennsylvania ranks 32nd down the line in the quality of its library facilities.

(These recommendations we will publish in full for your study.) On the home front we find a new group of commissioners sufficiently alert at least to appoint a library advisory board. And the Warren library board also is revealing tangible signs of interest in making available its huge backlog of books for use in the entire area, possibly including Forest county.

The state has available federal funds for library work which will be returned if it is not used. In short, if Pennsylvania doesn't spend it, some other state will and we will help pay the bill.

Because Warren has a library sufficiently large to eventually serve as a district library if the new program is approved by the legislature, this area has been chosen to serve as a demonstration district if it is willing.

This means that the state will spend thousands of dollars in Warren county for an experimenting good library service if local libraries will cooperate and if the county will spend at least a half mill as a starter. We say a half mill because we believe $15,000 will be required.

The state then will build the fund up to about $50,000 a year, will provide a bookmobile, and will set up standards which must be met. Thus Warren county will be one of the first in the state to be brought up to a standard that will compare favorably with states that lead in this field, and will have much more in the way of reading advantages than ever was hoped by the many who have fought so long for this boon to education.

Without reading, no one goes very far in any major field. Without a reading background, young people who go on to college are greatly handicapped. And after school the adult who wants to keep truly informed must continue to read. He also is apt to be in great need of reference reading, which can be very expensive if not available in a library. In this way essential information is accessible to all and is comparatively inexpensive when the cost is shared.

With nearly half our county lacking library service, another 8,000 serviced by meager facilities, and only 16,000 close to a reasonably modern library, we should be readily accepting this opportunity to correct our apparent and pathetic lack.

Only ignorance, limited vision, and a complete failure to understand the needs of our educational system and of our adult society, can block this forward step.

SOUND! SAFE! SECURE SAVINGS

Television and Radio

By John Crosby

ROAST OF THE TOWN

I keep getting the feeling that I'm going back, back, back into time and any moment now I expect to find myself walking around in the eighteenth century just like Leslie Howard in "Berkeley Square." The reason I can't stay pinned to my own century is every time I turn on television it seems as if we've been through all this before.

I must be having hallucinations because I thought I saw Ed Sullivan being honored at a banquet on television Sunday. "Pshaw!" I ejaculated carefully, having been schooled to make the P felt but not heard. "This must be an hallucination (no one in my circle says 'A hallucination') for they have not telecast banquets since the invention of Milton Berle. But soft! He speaks!"

That dialogue may seem a little antiquated but, dammit, I feel a little antiquated. Seems to me they used to broadcast banquets commemorating things like the first anniversary of the telephone back when there was nothing else to broadcast. But I thought we had all that safely behind us after Howdy Doody took his first faltering steps, after they invented the proscenium arch and began messing around with scenery. Seems to me the banquet, as a framework for entertainment, must even predate the church choir.

But enough of this. Here it was again -- the Friars' Club testimonial to Ed Sullivan, with celebrities, speeches, waiters, napkins, and jokes. I must say they were good jokes. It started out with Joe E. Lewis's celebrated joke about Sullivan: "Man, how that guy can brighten a room -- just by leaving it." That's a good joke but it needs rest. Lewis has used it on Sullivan's show before. It's been in every column in town, including this one years ago. Just before fleeing, Lewis delivered himself of another one: "What have you heard from the autopsy -- anything new?"

Mr. Lewis declared that the Friars only roast the people they love. "If you got a Friar for a friend," I muttered to myself, "you'll never need an enemy." (I must have read that line somewhere; I couldn't have made it up.) After that the loving jokes flew thick and fast about the fact that Sullivan can't sing, dance, act, smile, or even stand. In fact, his publisher got up and said: "He's been a columnist for twenty-six years and he can't even write."

Sullivan took all this abuse with wonderful good nature. Jack Carter was master of ceremonies and he was mighty funny. Others who pitched in from time to time included Wayne and Shuster, Joey Bishop, Rocky Graziano and Jack E. Leonard. It exercised a sort of horrid fascination on me. I kept strangling the laughs, feeling that if I had too good a time this could be a regular weekly thing. "One boffolo out of you, Crosby, and they'll revive all those other programs with table cloths in them -- like the Stork Club show."

The other big news on Sunday was on the other network where "Omnibus" put Esther Williams on a submarine. That must have been one of these things that seemed like a good idea at a story conference one time and, by Jove, the next thing they knew they were rehearsing the bit. She made a frightfully pretty guide for a submarine but she seemed mostly taken by the courtesy of the submariners she met in the narrow corridors. The air was full of little sounds of "excuse me" which were engaging but not very elucidating. "Such polite young men," she'd murmur, staring after them, and I kept waiting for the plot to begin or the band to strike up.

You got the feeling this was a musical named "Ankles Aweigh" rather than a serious documentary about submarines coming live from the New London, Conn., submarine base. Later, though, Alistair Cooke took over in earnest and we learned about compression chambers and blowing negatively instead of positively and such educational stuff, which isn't as pretty as Miss Williams.

"Omnibus" seems to have been crossed with "Wide Wide World" this year. It was a good meaty documentary which gave you some idea of the pitfalls of the submarine profession, which will keep me out of that line of work forevermore. (c) 1958 New York Herald Tribune Inc.

KINDERGARTEN pupils from the McClintock school enjoyed a visit to Warren Airport recently.

One of the groups is pictured with their teacher, Mrs. Conway, and Mr. and Mrs. Mel Barron, who played host to the youngsters.

NEWLY REMODELED inside and out, the New Yorker observed its grand opening in Warren last week end.

The front (pictured) has been refinished with sand stone, wood paneling and aluminum. Inside, owner Ted Maniakas lowered the ceiling with Acousta Stone acoustic ceiling, paneled the walls with knotty cedar, added draperies, and replaced the lighting to give a soft atmosphere. The blond oak back bar, which is nearly 100 years old, has been refinished, the furnishings rearranged, new rest rooms installed. There is also a new air conditioning, heating and exhaust system.

ALERT DRAGON GRIDDERS BEAT JAMESTOWN, 21 TO 0

Two long sustained drives and a recovered Jamestown fumble produced three touchdowns and a 21 to 0 Warren victory over Jamestown on War Memorial Field last Saturday afternoon. The win was the Dragon's sixth in nine games. They lost only two and tied one game.

The Blue and White drove 61 yards in 10 plays to score the first time they had the ball. Dick Terry and Jim Wick accounted for most of the Warren yardage on the drive. Bob Haslet scored the TD from the one yard line after only 4 1/2 minutes of the game had elapsed. Lou Mascaro bolted into the end zone for the PAT and an early 7 to 0 Warren lead.

The Dragons added their second score in the second quarter. Jim Olson punted for the Dragons on fourth down. The Red Raiders safetymen fumbled the ball on an attempted handoff and Bill Mervine pounced on the loose pigskin on the Jamestown 30 yard stripe.

The Dragons then moved the ball goalward with quarterback Mascaro scoring the TD from the one yard line to end the short drive. Mascaro passed into the end zone to Jack Lobdell, a truly "lonesome end" on the play, for the PAT to make the scoreboard read 14 to 0 for Warren. A fourth down Mascaro to Haslet pass into the flats which moved the ball to the Jamestown 5 yard line was the key play of the series.

The Dragons added their third touchdown on a 15 play, 85 yard drive in the final quarter. During the drive Terry skirted his right end on a fourth down and seven yards to go situation and picked up 25 yards, Warren's longest single gain of the game. Haslet scored the TD from about a foot out and Mascaro added the third Warren PAT of the game.

The Dragon offensive line pushed aside the Jamestown line enabling the Warren backs to grind out short yardage consistently. Both teams gained over 200 yards rushing during the game. Jamestown was able to move the ball freely against the Warren defensive line until they moved near the Dragon goal line where the Warren defensive line stiffened and beat back the Jamestown attack.

The Red Raiders fumbled away their only real scoring opportunity of the game on the Warren 4 yard line late in the first quarter.

The Warren attack featured good ball handling in the backfield and the win was a team effort. Alert Dragon defenders pounced on four Jamestown fumbles.

LIGHT HUNTING

The Game Commission claims the game is not suffering much from the current effort of hunters, not because there is a lack of wildlife but because there seems to be a lethargy on the part of the gunmen. Either they can't take it or are not sufficiently interested.

Hunting has been sporadic and the result is that it should be good for the rest of the season. Late cutting of corn fields are offering ringnecks good cover, squirrels are not moving from plentiful feeding grounds, grouse are as wild as usual, and the warm weather has kept the rabbits tight. All of which adds up to a good day for those with excellent dogs, or for those with great patience.

Another late hunting advantage may be the lack of cold weather in Canada. The migratory bird shooting has been light because nothing has sent the big flocks south. When they come in the ducks will look more plentiful on milady's table. (If you can find a lady who will cook one.)

The Commission also urges wise shooting when water fowl is the objective. Too many birds are crippled by shots that should never have been taken. The officials advise you to wait until they fly close to your decoys and are near enough for their feet to be seen. A retriever will reduce the number of crippled birds. Wait for the clean kill, thus saving ammunition and the game.

NO MUSKIE HERE?

A recent news release from the Fish Commission reveals the planting of 17,596 muskellunge in Pennsylvania rivers and lakes, but no water in the Warren county area enjoyed the benefits. This is called natural water and the plantings were made in locations where they are not ordinarily found.

Nine of the areas received their first muskies, and ten others were re-stocked. It now remains to be learned if they will reproduce in these waters. The musky is too expensive to raise because of their immense appetite but if water can be found where they will live naturally more fishermen will enjoy the sport of hooking this battler.

WARREN HIGH SCHOOL CLASS GETS OUTDOOR EDUCATION

(Under the above heading the conservation class taught by Mr. Reddick received a bit of publicity in a recent Game Commission release.)

William Overturf, one of the Game Commission's Land and Group Managers, reports that last month the conservation class of the Warren High School enjoyed a guided tour in Warren County. Representatives of the various conservation agencies of that county headed the trip. The class was transported in a bus chartered by the Warren County Field and Stream Club.

Speaking principally on the program of the wildlife authority he represents, Overturf said, "Ranger Larry Stotz of the Forest Service and I showed the students results of the Game Commission program on the Allegheny National Forest. These included: edge cuttings around plantations of trees, apple trees pruned and released from suppressing vegetation, old logging roads on which were beautiful stands of clover and long, narrow strips of clover and wheat in a pine plantation. The students were given a lesson in fox trapping also.

"This is the eighth year for the conservation class in the Warren High School. Several hundred boys and girls have taken this course in that time. Game Protector David Titus and I have participated on this activity, as have others in conservation work."
